Project abstract:

Towards the end of the 19th century, school developed into a powerful institution that became accessible to increasingly larger social groups. Literature in the diverse vernacular languages functioned as a core component of the modernizing school curricula. The research project Learning Modern Literature. Literary Education in Western Europe (1880-1940) researches the complex interactions between the world of school and the world of literature in Western Europe in the period of modernism. How did the field of 'literary education' develop in different European nations and in different educational contexts? Why was learning to read literature considered an important part of education? What functions and roles were assigned to literature and literary texts, inside and outside the language class? How were texts interpreted and adapted to function in diverse pedagogical contexts? How did literature itself reflect upon and evaluate learning literature at school?

Documentation and Metadata

Data will be made retrievable and understandable by the following procedures:

1. Similar data types, file types, file structures and file names for each WP (subproject) as specified in table A below.
2. Detailed bibliographies for each WP and a general bibliography, with reference to source materials as specified in table A below.
3. Information on how corpuses are constructed will be specified in the publications as specified in table B below.
4. Methodologies specifying how source materials are processed and interpreted will be specified in the publications as specified in table B below.

Data Storage & Back-up during the Research Project

- Other (specify below)
- KU Leuven personal OneDrives by PhD researchers, shared with the supervisors
- KU Leuven Teams site

- Standard back-up provided by KU Leuven ICTS for my storage solution

- Yes

OneDrives and Teams site are only accessible by the team members.

If additional storage is needed, this can be purchased by the project budget.

Data Preservation after the end of the Research Project

- All data will be preserved for 10 years according to KU Leuven RDM policy
- KU Leuven RDR

No additional costs

Data Sharing and Reuse

- Yes, as open data

NA

- Yes, other

The sharing of certain source materials (e.g. archival material) may be subjected to specific regulations by non-KU Leuven libraries or archival institutions. These source data will be processed according to the regulations of the specific institutions.
